Selection Criteria for Host Site Agencies

Each year our AmeriCorps program accepts applications from organizations interested in serving as a host site for an AmeriCorps member. Upon receipt of the applications, the following factors shall be considered in determining selections of the host sites:

- Previous experience in hosting an AmeriCorps member (preference give to those sites that provided meaningful work and appropriate supervision, complied with program requirements, etc.)
- Recruitment potential (consider past experience/problems in recruiting candidates in the surrounding area)
- Location (preference given to sites in an area not already being served by the program)
- Quality of position description: ability to provide meaningful work activities within the scope of the program's goals.
