Linda Burkholder, Folsom Cordova (CA) Family Support Services

Linda: One of the things that we do in terms of that, sort of setting the stage and making sure that people understand what they're getting into is: there's a couple of things. First of all, checking on what the motivation is to do service because to me the motivation to do service is the most important. In fact, the level of education, the skills, you know, the experience that someone has is much less important to me than what's motivating them to do VISTA service in the first place. Everything else will follow.
